

LEADERS GATHER AT SAINT LOUIS

The Preliminary Work of Republican Convention Is Begun.

MANY MEN OF NOTE ARE NOW THERE.

Determined Effort To Be Made By McKinley's Friends to Placate the Silver Men—National Committee Meets to Decide the Contest For Seats—May Make the Nomination on Wednesday—Talk of Probable Action.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—The McKinley men, headed by Mark Hanna, are bending every effort to placate the silver men. Last night McKinley's chief advisor and Chairman Carter of the national committee were in consultation over three hours. Colorado, headed by Senator Teller; Idaho, led by Senator Dubois; Utah, by Trumbo, are regarded as hopeless by the McKinley men, but such silver men as Carter, who has never formally announced that he would bolt the convention, will be held in line if possible by the convention managers.

Mr. Hanna, as well as all the other men who are looked upon as being close to McKinley, still assert that the convention will come out boldly for the present standard. Mr. Hanna is talking the Indiana platform to the silver men. He is urging them to give way to the majority of the convention, and insists that the same results can be accomplished by protection.

After the conference with Mr. Carter and the other silver men, Mr. Hanna and those who were closeted with him refused to detail what took place in the private room. Mr. Carter admitted that silver had been touched upon, but would say nothing further. Mr. Hanna said he had promised himself he would not be interviewed and intended to keep his promise. During all the talk about free silver, these men who have talked with Mark Hanna say that he has not shown the least sign of weakening on the money question. He has given out the impression without saying so that he is positive the convention will be "sound on the money question," as he is that McKinley will be nominated.

The radical silver men, however, declare that no matter what McKinley wants or Hanna declares they will not let up in their fight. Senator Teller is due here June 15, and will at once take control of the silver movement. Some few of the silver men are advising against any sensational bolt. They say the delegations can remain in the convention until the vice president is nominated.

By that time they will know what the chances of silver will be. Then they can stay away from the last sessions of the convention and the dramatic feature of a bolt will be avoided. This class of silver men favor waiting until after the national democratic convention, and then, if its action does not suit them, to issue an address defining their future plans.

Senator Hansbrough, a member of the national committee, in an interview said:

"The convention should at least pledge the republican party to labor faithfully in behalf of an international conference on the money question, with a view to securing an agreement in behalf of a permanent and settled equality between silver and gold, and the nominee should be instructed by the convention to force the gold nations of Europe, through trade discriminations in our commercial intercourse with them, to establish bimetallism as the universal rule. What the people of the United States want from this convention is a substantial promise that the republican party will give them genuine financial reform."

John R. Tanner says: "The currency question will be the paramount issue of the campaign. All republicans are for protection and perhaps one-half of the democracy. This convention should adopt an emphatic sound-money platform, declaring in favor of our present gold standard. Any other course would be disastrous." Perry Heath, one of the McKinley men here from Ohio, announced that he had seen a letter from Senator Allison of Iowa to an Iowa man who is in St. Louis formally withdrawing from the presidential contest. Reed, Quay, Morton and Bradley still have their headquarters. Reed's friends who are here admit that they are largely dependent upon Platt for the show they will make in the convention. Quay's friends declare they will stick to him to the last, although their leader is said to be in daily communication with McKinley in Canton and Hanna in St. Louis. Morton's friends are not many in number, but they also say they will stick to him to the last.

The convention hall was dedicated Wednesday night by impressive exercises and in the presence of a large number of people, for the most part from St. Louis, who will see the inside of the building for the only time during the convention.

HOBART HIS CHOICE.

New Jersey Man Favored by Senator Thurston for Second Place.

St. Louis, June 11.—Senator Thurston, member of the national republican committee from Nebraska and delegate to the convention, was among the early arrivals. "It is pretty well understood," said the senator, "that I am for McKinley for first place. With his nomination assured, as it is, we want an eastern man to be his running mate, and I believe Hobart to be the available man. He meets the requirements of the situation in all respects. We want to keep New Jersey in the republican ranks now that we have it here. Furthermore, Hobart is strong in New York, where he is personally well known and much esteemed."

JOHN M. THURSTON.

Asked what course he thought would be adopted by the convention upon the financial question Thurston replied that he believed the Indiana declaration upon that subject would form the model upon which the money declaration would be based.

The senator expressed the opinion that the Indiana platform would be satisfactory to all the western states, except the five silver-producing states—Colorado, Utah, Montana, Idaho and Nevada, and possibly Wyoming—but he said that as they have, all told, only nineteen votes in the electoral college, the party could afford to lose them.

Mr. Thurston said, in reply to a question, that he had no doubt some of the delegates from the eastern seaboard would make strong contention for a more pronounced and explicit declaration for gold, but it would not be wise to concede their extreme demands.

"They will in the end be satisfied with a conservative pronouncement," he said, "and they will be glad enough to take it in preference to the unequivocal free-silver declaration of the Chicago convention will give out."

Referring to other questions of which the platform will treat, the senator said he thought first place would be given to the tariff, as that is and has been a distinctive issue of the republican party.

GARRETT A. HOBART.

He thought there would be a declaration demanding in strong terms a distinctively American policy, but he was of the opinion that the A. P. A. question would not figure in the convention.

MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE.

Entire Day Given to Consideration of the Many Contests.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—The meeting of the republican national committee to decide the contests for seats in the national convention absorbed the general interest in affairs pertaining to the convention Wednesday. The entire day session was given up to the Alabama contests, which involved the seats of the four delegates-at-large and all the nine districts except the 2d, making twenty-two seats that were in dispute. Of the eighteen delegates whose cases were decided either by vote of the committee or by withdrawal sixteen are for McKinley and two for Reed for president. There was no division upon any of the contests except that made in the case of the delegates-at-large, and this was overwhelmingly in favor of the Vaughn or McKinley delegates and against the Mosley or anti-McKinley men.

The committee met at 12 o'clock with the national chairman, Thomas H. Carter of Montana, in the chair. It was discovered as soon as the committee announced its readiness to take up the Alabama contest that the parties were not prepared to proceed immediately. A recess was therefore taken until 2 o'clock, when it was announced that the states would be taken up in alphabetical order to hear contests. Chairman Carter stated that the territorial contests would not be taken up until those from the states should be disposed of.

A committee was appointed to prepare resolutions expressive of the committee's sense of bereavement over the death of Committeeman Campbell of Illinois. The announcement was made that J. W. Fifer had been appointed to fill the vacancy occasioned by Mr. Campbell's death. The resignation of Gov. Bradley of Kentucky was announced as was the appointment of Mr. Yerkes to succeed him.

The first contested case taken up was that of the delegates-at-large from Alabama.

Powell Clayton of Arkansas moved to seat the Buckley (McKinley) delegation. Senator Gear of Iowa moved to substitute the Mosley delegation, and Mr. Sutherland of New York, moved to refer the whole matter to a committee of three to sift the evidence and report tomorrow. This motion was voted down without division. Senator Shoup of Idaho moved to seat both delegations, with half a vote each. This was also voted down and the vote was taken on Senator Gear's motion which was defeated—7 to 38. The motion of Mr. Clayton was then adopted without opposition. From the First district, P. D. Booker and A. N. Johnson were seated. W. E. Aldrich, one of the contestants from the Fourth district, appeared for the contestants in this district. He and Fletcher Corry were the contestants against Thomas G. Dunn and W. G. Stevens. Mr. Youngblood moved that the Stevens-Dunn (McKinley) delegation should be seated, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The hearing on the contest from the Fifth district was postponed until today, and it was announced that the contest from the Sixth district had been withdrawn, leaving Iverson, Dawson and Daniel Cooper as the delegates from that district. They are not instructed, but are understood to be for McKinley. From the Seventh district C. D. Alexander and George Curtis were recognized. They are said to be favorable to McKinley, though they are not instructed. The contest from the Eighth district was withdrawn, giving the seats to H. V. Cashin and Walter W. Simmons, both of whom are McKinley men.

The contest in the Ninth district was decided in favor of the contesting delegates, Hanlon and Wimbbs. They are avowedly for Reed for president. The committee took a recess until 8 o'clock.

The evening session was presided over by Vice Chairman M. H. De Young. The Georgia contest on the delegates-at-large was taken up, and the Doveaux-Rucker delegation was seated without a word of debate. Both are McKinley men, though not instructed.

The hearing of the California, Delaware and Florida cases was postponed until today.

Except for two districts in Alabama and one from Georgia, those two states were entirely disposed of. The total of the day's work was the disposal of twenty-four contesting delegates, eighteen in Alabama and six in Georgia. Of the twenty-four delegates seated all but two favor McKinley.

CHICAGO AS HEADQUARTERS.

Leaders Hope to Divert the Silver Sentiment in Illinois.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Headquarters of the republican national committee will probably be located in Chicago immediately after the convention ends here. The McKinley men, it is understood, realize the strength of the silver movement in Illinois as much as the republicans who reside in the state. The managers claim that after the nomination of McKinley the combination will disband, and each state delegation, now tied down by instructions, will be allowed to cast its vote as it sees fit on all other questions. Out of the multitude of candidates for vice president the men who really speak for McKinley claim that they have no choice outside of Reed, and they are convinced that he will not accept the nomination.

The strength of the silver movement has grown in the eyes of Tanner and Jamieson until it now endangers republican success in Illinois this fall. The only way to save the state, they are telling the republican bosses here, is to locate the national headquarters in Chicago. It is also being pointed out to the politicians that the facilities for directing the campaign at Chicago are far greater than those of some eastern city. Now that the McKinley men are looking with favor on the plan, the Illinois politicians are almost certain that they will gain their point.

"McKinley will decide where the national headquarters are to go," said John R. Tanner. I have been given to understand that Hanna is interested in Chicago, and that as soon as he gets the details of McKinley's nomination fixed up he will declare himself. I am also told that McKinley himself has considered the matter and spoken in favor of Chicago." Dr. Jamieson expressed himself in much the same way.

It is given out that McKinley will turn a cold shoulder on the National League of Republican Clubs. One of the men high in his confidence said that the league had served its purpose, and that it was now time for it to be left alone by the candidate for president. This man asserted that McKinley did not want two republican organizations, and that he would probably adopt the same policy that Tanner did in 1894, of ignoring the organization, and make all republicans who desired to take an active part in politics work through the regular organization.

ARRIVAL OF MARK HANNA.

McKinley's Director-General Reaches St. Louis and Directs Leaders.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Mark A. Hanna came to St. Louis in a private car Wednesday morning. Mr. Hanna has spacious headquarters on the parlor floor of the Southern, where there is a big reception room, the door of which is always open. "McKinley will be nominated on the first ballot," he said. The greater part of the day was taken up with Senator Thurston of Nebraska, Joseph Smith of Ohio and the men who are close to the Ohio candidate.

It was given out at Hanna's headquarters that Senator Foraker, who is to make the speech nominating McKinley, would also be the Ohio member of the committee on resolutions. Senator Foraker is counted as a gold-standard man. What followers of the Foraker faction are here say that the senator, regardless of McKinley's wishes, will fight for a bold declaration on the currency question.

The Illinoisans who are here say the republicans have already realized they made a mistake when they refused to send the convention to Chicago.

MAY NOMINATE WEDNESDAY.

Business of Convention Will Be Expedited Without Loss of Time.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Said Col. Perry S. Heath, in charge of the McKinley headquarters:

"We may be able to make a nomination as early as Wednesday. It will be made not later than Thursday. No time will be lost. There will be only one ballot for each place. McKinley will win for first place; that is conceded." Col. Heath declined to be interviewed on the vice-presidential possibilities. McKinley leaders almost to a man declare that Speaker Reed will be nominated unless he declines peremptorily. If he does so Garrett A. Hobart of New Jersey is second in favor. Some of the New York delegates are pressing his claims.

May Not Handle the Crowd.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Many of the delegates are growing restless over the probability that St. Louis cannot handle the crowd. It is estimated that between 75,000 and 125,000 republicans will be here to see the end of the convention and that the city will not be competent to handle the crowd, notwithstanding the assertions by the members of the local committee. The hotel managers, however, claim that they will make a reputation for St. Louis as a convention city and that all of these fears are needless.

Proctor Not a Candidate.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Senator Proctor, who has been mentioned as a candidate for vice-president, says: "I do not want to be vice-president of the United States. My name shall not be presented for that office before the republican national convention. I do not think that my name will be presented to the convention. Whenever I am satisfied that such action is probable I shall take steps to prevent it. My state is 5 to 1 for McKinley. He will surely win on the first ballot."

The Vermont senator says the republican platform should be so phrased that nobody would ever could mistake, distort or argue its meaning, and that meaning should be unqualifiedly for a single money standard. He does not expect a single delegate to bolt, no matter what the declarations of the convention regarding money.

Manley Admits Defeat.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Mr. Manley of Maine said yesterday: "In my judgment the convention will nominate Gov. McKinley on the first ballot for the presidency. Mr. Reed's name will be presented to the convention and he will be voted for, and I am authorized to say that under no conditions or circumstances can he or will he accept the nomination for vice-president, and if it should be tendered to him the great majority of the New England delegates will be loyal to Mr. Reed, but it is evident the convention is for Gov. McKinley and will nominate him." It is said that in the face of this certain and admitted defeat delegates could not be expected to vote for Reed and that probably all of New Hampshire, all of Rhode Island and all but one in Connecticut would be cast for McKinley.

BRADLEY STATES HIS CASE.

Denies That He Ever Favored Compromise on Currency Question.

Frankfort, Ky., June 11.—During the last week statements have been sent out from Washington that Gov. W. O. Bradley, who was last year elected governor of Kentucky on a "sound-money" platform over a democratic free silver candidate, has originally been in favor of a compromising policy; that Gov. McKinley had induced him to adopt the gold policy, and that he has since negotiated with McKinley and other candidates. This has been followed by statements purporting to come from Frankfort that Gov. Bradley had in his possession letters written him in confidence from various republicans of national prominence which he would make public in retaliation for the aspersions against his sincerity.

In justice to himself and his party Gov. Bradley yesterday made the following statement: "I deny that I was ever the representative of Mr. Evans in any way, nor it is true that my action was ever controlled or over-awed in the slightest degree by what is politely called the 'Platt-Clarkson crowd.' I have not attempted to make terms with Mr. McKinley or with any of his managers, or with any of the presidential aspirants or any of their managers. I have not offered to trade sixteen votes or any votes for the vice-presidency, nor will I be a candidate for vice-president nor would I accept a cabinet position."

"I did write Mr. McKinley, and at the same time wrote to a number of leading republicans throughout the country concerning the Kentucky campaign. The insinuation that I wrote favoring a straddle on the currency question or that McKinley advised me not to pursue such a course or said that the silver agitation is the result of hard times just as the greenback craze was the result of the panic of 1873, is totally false. I have time and again declared in favor of the gold standard, with every dollar made of equal value, and against the free and unlimited coinage of silver. My canvass was made on a platform embodying those ideas, and I adhere to that platform now."

"I believe that sound currency will be the leading issue of the coming campaign. The republican convention should declare unhesitatingly in favor of the single-gold standard. We may lose some western states, but this loss will be more than compensated by gains in the old slave border states."

DELEGATES NOT INSTRUCTED.

Connecticut Democrats Declare in Favor of the Gold Standard.

Hartford, Conn., June 11.—The democratic state convention to select delegates to the national convention at Chicago and presidential electors met here Wednesday. On the subject of the currency platform says:

"As a necessary consequence the honest payment of public debts and the preservation of the public credit require that the gold standard of money as a measure of value shall be maintained. Under existing circumstances to pay public debts in silver coin is repudiation; to pay private debts in coin is to rob the wage-earners; and to provide for the free coinage of silver means the destruction of legitimate business and great suffering among the laboring classes."

"We believe that the safety of our national finances requires a system of sound banking by which a bank-note currency ample to supply the needs of the whole country shall be created, safely secured and always and everywhere redeemable in gold."

The delegates were not instructed on the subject of presidential candidates.

NEW PARTY ADOPTS POPULIST IDEAS

FEDERATION OF LABOR HAS A PLATFORM.

Are in Favor of Compulsory Education For Children Under Fourteen Years of Age and Want Eight Hours to Be a Day's Work—Some State Specials.

Racine, Wis., June 11.—[Special]—The State Federation of Labor this morning adopted the populist platform with a few changes. It provides for the compulsory education of children under fourteen years of age, and the reduction of working hours from ten to eight.

The meeting also voted to put two state organizers in the field instead of one.

Racine, Wis., June 11.—[Special]—The State Bankers' Association met here today with one hundred delegates present. The secretary's report showed that 178 banks were represented in the association, and the treasurer's report showed a balance of $956 in the treasury. Governor Updegraff was one of the speakers this morning.

Vilas May Bolt on Silver.

Madison, Wis., June 11.—If a free-silver platform is adopted by the democracy at the coming Chicago convention it is said Senator William F. Vilas of Wisconsin, will cast his ballot for president for Maj. William McKinley. It is also stated that Mr. Vilas has confirmed the story to his friends that in case of a free-silver stand by the democrats President Cleveland will be found to be an adherent of McKinley.

Games Played in the National League Yesterday.

Yesterday's contest in the National league resulted as follows: Chicago, 14; Washington, 13. Baltimore, 9; Louisville, 0. Cleveland, 5; Philadelphia, 2. Pittsburgh, 4; Brooklyn, 1. New York, 10; Cincinnati, 6. St. Louis at Boston—Rain.

Maryland Is for Gold.

Baltimore, Md., June 11.—Chairman H. W. Talbot of the state central committee called the democratic state convention to order Wednesday. The resolutions favored a tariff for revenue only and endorsed "the vigorous policy of President Cleveland." The financial plank was a straightforward endorsement of the present gold standard of currency and an emphatic condemnation of the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

Maj. Stewart presented a minority report in direct contravention to this, but it was overwhelmingly defeated and the majority report adopted.

Hotels Refuse the Negroes.

St. Louis, Mo., June 11.—Mark Hanna was very busy yesterday. First he turned his attention to the predicament of the colored delegates. He gave a sweeping order. It was to the effect that they were to be cared for if the McKinley men had to buy a hotel. The leading hotels of the city insist they are full and cannot accommodate the colored men.

Indiana Gold Men Make No Headway.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 11.—The leading advocates of the free coinage of silver take it that the action of the democrats of the Second district Wednesday indicates what may be expected in every district in the state. The convention instructed delegates to the Chicago convention to vote for a free coinage plank and to support no candidate who was not committed to the free coinage of silver. Gov. Matthew's candidacy was endorsed.

The state committee, representing the gold standard wing of the party, has practically abandoned all hope of making any headway. It is predicted by representative democrats that the committee will within the next ten days decide not to oppose the free silver crowd on the floor of the convention. It is announced that the banks have begun calling in their paper on account of the free silver movement. The free silver leaders say their cause cannot be injured by any such move.

University Trustees Arrested.

Champaign, Ill., June 11.—At the March term of the Champaign county circuit court Gov. Altgeld and the members of the board of trustees of the University of Illinois were indicted for alleged non-compliance with the Illinois flag law. The warrants were not served on the members till Wednesday. Those arrested were: Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, Chicago; Col. Richard P. Morgan, Dwight; Nelson W. Graham, Carbondale; J. E. Armstrong, Chicago, president of the board; S. A. Ballard, Springfield; I. S. Raymond, Sidney; Col. N. B. Morrison, Odin; Alexander McLean, Macomb.

"The 'class night' exercises of the Janesville High School were held at the opera house last evening, and a large audience was present. The program, which had been arranged by Edward H. Peterson, Katherine B. Smith and William J. Hamilton was as follows:

Scene 2.—Marching exercises and tableaux.
Class song composed and arranged by Marcia M. Jackman.

First Scene Was Funny.
The first scene was a very funny one. The pupils sang and acted as primary scholars would, and the honors were won by Miss Lynch, Miss Smith, Miss Jackman, Miss Stoddard, Miss Bennett, and Carl Golling. The second scene, representing school at the present time, was equally amusing. Messrs. Peterson, Hamilton, Knoff and Carl Golling doing especially well. The song composed by Miss Ratheram was one of the features.

R. E. Knoff's burlesque of Prof. Buell's manner of teaching was very clever, while Miss Jackman assumed the role of "Samantha Higgins," the unwelcome visitor, in a very ludicrous manner.

The exhibition of Indian club swinging was very good and as an encore, the class repeated the exhibition with clubs tipped with flame. Physical Director Dixon, of the Y. M. C. A., was their instructor.

William Hamilton was the presiding officer when act II was presented. William M. Bonesteel's rendition of "The Unknown Speaker" was especially effective and showed that Mr. Bonesteel had made a study of the art of speaking.

Miss Stoddard Made a Hit.
Miss Julia Belle Stoddard delivered a peppery oration dealing with the subject, "Is a Lawyer Justified in Defending a Guilty Client?" She held that he was not, and made the points of her argument clear to the audience. Her paper showed careful preparation, and was very effectively delivered.

Extemporaneous speeches were made by Miss Maud Roethinger, who spoke entertainingly of "Graduation Fifty Years Hence;" Jessie L. Loudon who spoke of "The Value of The Study of Latin;" Clayton L. Holmes, who evinced, by his excellent effort on "What Honest Money Really Is," a thorough understanding of the financial question; and Miss Julia Cullen on "War." Alice M. Fenton, also spoke, her subject being "Whirlwinds." She assumed the role of a junior, and wore a "school girl" costume.

"The School Paper," by Misses Nott and Rogers was very interesting, and was made more laughable by the use of large crayon cartoons.

Class Song Was Clever.
The marching exercises by the young ladies of the class, were very good, and called forth enthusiastic applause. The "class song" was the cleverest number of the evening. The words and arrangement were by Miss Jackman, and the verse was set to a musically blended melody of popular songs. Miss Jackman directed the singing while Miss Smith was the accompanist.

Tonight the class will receive their diplomas, and those who are to take part in the exercises are Ethel I. Fisher, Ethel M. Halsey, Susie E. Lowell, Alice McGregor, Frank L. Mc-

They Will Ride From Minneapolis to Janesville On a Wheel.

The Minneapolis Tribune says: "Two Minneapolis school boys intend to enjoy their vacation this summer in what is fast becoming the popular way of taking an outing. Jay E. Addy and E. Everett Addy, sons of James E. They will make the trip on their bicycles for the greater part of the way. From St. Paul the road leads to Hudson and from there to Black River Falls. NEARLY eight thousand people bought meals in Janesville yesterday. Nearly all the food was donated so that the receipts were nearly clear profit. Estimates are made as follows:

Church.	Num-ber	Re-ber
All Souls.	2,500	$900
First M. E.	1,900	490
Court Street.	1,600	400
Congregational.	900	225
Presbyterian.	450	115
Christ church.	300	75
Total.	7,710	$1,905

The amount of bread that was disposed of by the wholesalers is estimated by the local bakers at about 50,000 loaves. That this quantity was not sold by the retailers is made evident enough by the shipments that are left in the city today. The retailers are the losers. Janesville bakers made the bulk of the 50,000 loaves although Beloit and Rockford dealers, made large shipments, it all being contracted for.

For the excellent management and success of the greatest picnic that Wisconsin has ever seen, no little credit is due W. H. Ashcraft, Jr. Mr. Ashcraft has been hard at work every minute since Janesville was chosen as the place for the event. For the past three weeks he has devoted a good share of his time to the undertaking that would have kept two men busy.

The arch erected by F. M. Marzluft & Company across Milwaukee street, attracted a good deal of attention last night. The lights were furnished by the Bower City Light and Power Company and the arrangement was made by Mr. Thurber, who is connected with that company. The design was gotten up and executed in a few hours.

ICE cream sold well throughout the city, in spite of the fact that the weather was not hot. Both the Shurtleff and the Daly factories were pushed to their utmost, and the two factories combined made close to 1,800 gallons. The churches and the restaurants disposed of the greatest amount.

THE "shell game" was worked yesterday by the First National Bank building under the very noses of two of the special police. The sharpers informed the special police that they had obtained a city license for the game, so they were allowed to proceed with the "amusement."

A WOMAN fainted in the court house park, and the ambulance was called, but as she was reviving when the company arrived, Dr. Joe. Whiting said she was better off in the open air than in a close room. She soon recovered.

A SNEAK thief snatched a pocket book from a lady on West Milwaukee street. She called him and he was taken into Colvin's bakery by one of the special police, but returned the money and the special officer let him go.

THE union cigarmakers were very much exercised yesterday morning, when they found that bill posters had worked all night, putting up bills advertising a certain non-union cigar. Many of the bills were torn down.

526 barrels of beer were sold. One hundred and six barrels were made by the Schlitz Company; 31, barrels of the Blatz brand, sold by N. B. Robinson; and 285 barrels by two local breweries.

THE largest crowd that the armory has contained in many a day made merry last evening. The throng was a good natured one, and the receipts netted a neat profit for the Woodmen.

ONE of the most comfortable crowds of yesterday was one who occupied a carryall from Snyder Bros. livery, Beloit. The crowded streets made but little difference to them.

THE fire department arches made a fine appearance, and as the city cannot get anything for the lumber in them, many people think they ought to be stored for future use.

THE largest crowd found its way to Athletic Park to see the ball game. The result is that the Y. M. C. A. treasury will be better off by a good many dollars.

A BLIND organ grinder profited in front of Robinson's saloon yesterday afternoon, when two Beloit drunks tried to see who could give away the most money.

A WHEELMAN with very long hair attracted no end of attention yesterday, and was "guyed" by thousands. His name is Luther Bray, and Richmond is his home.

No window decoration in town attracted more attention than the statue of the colored boy holding a hat-bet in F. D. Kimball's window.

THE Presbyterian church did not figure ice cream, etc., in their total receipts, so that their profit will be larger than stated elsewhere.

THE "great quartette," Acheson, Hogan, Appleby and Brown, deserve much credit for the excellence of the police arrangements.

ONE young man who ran an East Milwaukee street stand, took in less than he paid for the carpenter work in building the stand.

CONRAD's meat market was turned into an eating house.

THE officials of the St. Paul road took in the town yesterday in a hack.

Supt. Collins said that he never saw such a crowd.

THE work of cleaning up the court house park commenced this morning, and the half dozen men had all they could do.

NOR one accident occurred in the city, Lawrence Ward, whose toes were crushed, being hurt near Hanover.

THE second class hotels did a rushing business with roomers. One hotel quartered one hundred over night.

A NUMBER of the liverymen stabled their horses in private barns, to give the equines of the visitors room.

THE photograph fiend was very busy, and at least two hundred kodaks were sprung on the public yesterday.

THE boats were well patronized yesterday but the people who visited the parks spent little money.

THE "balloonist" who went up from Mayflower Park, came down near Mount Olivet cemetery.

NOR one of the camps that sent word that it would come failed to put in an appearance.

THE street cars could not begin to carry the crowds to either the races or the ball game.

ALL Souls people sold Supt. Aller, of the poor farm, 200 loaves of bread at 1 cent a loaf.

AT 10.30 last night the streets were clear for the first time since early in the morning.

THE steamer Mayflower couldn't carry all the people who wanted to ride.

FULLY two hundred people from Beloit attended the dance last evening.

BAND Marshal H. M. Weaver handled the incoming bands to perfection. FOURTEEN Evansville and Edgerton cyclists came down on their bicycles.

ONE two-seated vehicle from Lima had twelve people as passengers.

"RHODY" WHALEN was up from Beloit yesterday with a cane rack.

FOR such a tremendous crowd very little money was spent.

THREE thousand people visited the Y. M. C. A. building.

TWO uniformed policemen from Elgin were here.

F. F. PIERSON had charge of the day fireworks.

THE stand "barkers" got hoarse before night.

THE Gazette sold five hundred extra papers.

DECORATIONS came down with a rush today.

THE train service was simply perfection.

HALL's circus did a good business.

THE hackmen did a good business.

THE bell game netted $200.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

1652—The first mint in America began to coin Colonial coinage began in Massachusetts. The first coins were of three denominations—12 pence, 6 pence and 3 pence. The inscription on one side was N. E. and on the other marks of value, XLII, VII and III. Later the word Massachusetts was placed on one side, with a tree in the center, and the words New England on the reverse, with the date of the year. Although several other colonies passed coinage acts, nothing came of them until after the Declaration of Independence, when the Confederacy and the separate states minted coins of small denominations.

1801—The United States entered on a war with Tripoli; Tripoli instituted the war on May 10, 1801, by cutting down the flagstaff of the American consulate.

1804—Professor David Burnett Scott of the College of the City of New York died in New York city; born 1822. Louis Green, the last slave sold on New Haven green, died in New Haven; born 1759.

1865—William Schinart, a pioneer merchant of California, died in San Francisco; born 1830.

THE CONVENTION AND THE TARIFF

The tariff does not seem likely to attract much attention in St. Louis next week. Still the tariff is a question of considerable importance, and demands wise treatment. It is safe to say that not one republican in ten wants a tariff constructed on the lines of the McKinley act of 1890. It is equally safe to say that the man whose name it bore would oppose the re-enactment of that law. That act had some good provisions.

The sugar schedule was wisely drawn, though the majority of the party would oppose the placing of sugar on the free list now until there is a solid assurance that ample revenue can be obtained without the income from this source. The reciprocity section gave satisfaction on the whole, and the principle of it can profitably be incorporated in the next republican tariff act.

The sort of a tariff that the republican party demands is one sufficiently high to cover the difference between the cost of European (or Asiatic) and American labor and not high enough to foster trusts. Such a tariff will furnish all the protection which can reasonably be demanded. Wisely drawn such a tariff will provide sufficient revenue to pay the expenses of the government. This revenue consideration should always be kept in mind when framing a tariff bill. One of the faults of the Wilson-Gorman law is that it does not furnish enough revenue, at the same time being so drawn as to deny protection to home industries. These are fatal defects, and should be avoided by the republicans even though a radical declaration on the tariff seems hardly necessary.

Kentucky seems to be doing its share towards convincing Secretary Carlisle of the wisdom of his accepting any chance offered him to practice law, anywhere outside of that state after the fourth of next March.

The unkindest cut of all, to Grover, is the charge that it was his personal unpopularity and failure to deny his tardy term aspirations which put the silver men in control of the democratic party.

Senator Gorman shakes hands with himself every time he thinks of the wisdom he displayed when he announced, months ago, that he would not attend the Chicago convention.

If Hoke Smith doesn't do any better in Georgia than Carlisle did in Kentucky, Mr. Cleveland may soon be asking them both what they are in the cabinet for anyway.

Present signs indicate that the democratic platform will make it unnecessary for the pops to hold a national convention.

Popular republican music. The McKinley march to St. Louis. McKinley's march to the White House will come later.

It is now entirely unnecessary for Mr. Cleveland to write a letter defining his attitude toward a third term.

The republican who will succeed Joe Blackburn in the senate will know how the man who laughs last feels.

Mr. Cleveland still has that Cuban card up his sleeve. Will he play it before the Chicago convention meets?

The leading feature upon the menu of the Chicago convention will be crow, served in all styles.

THE workman often eats his lunch on the same bench where he does his work. The office man turns his desk into a dining-table. Neither gets the out of doors exercise he needs, neither takes the proper time for eating. It is small wonder that the digestion of both gets out of order. In such cases Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come to their assistance by aiding nature in taking care of the food. The cause of nine-tenths of the sickness of the world is constipation. From this one cause come indigestion; disorders of the stomach, liver and kidneys; biliousness, headaches, flatulence, heartburn, impurity of the blood and the serious complications that follow. To begin with, constipation is a little thing, and a little thing will cure it. The "Pleasant Pellets" are tiny, sugar-coated granules. They will perfectly cure the worst cases of constipation and indigestion. If the druggist tries to sell you some other pill that pays him greater profit, just think of what will best pay you.

BIG "HOG" ENGINE LAYS ON ITS SIDEEXPENSIVE ACCIDENT IN THE
C. & N. W. YARDS.

Locomotive That Pulls the Midnight Limited Passenger Tipped Over By The Engine That Was Hauling a Special Passenger—The Damage Aggregates $1,000.

A $13,000 "hog engine" lay on its side in the Chicago & Northwestern yards, while fifty men were hustling about endeavoring to raise it, this morning.

A collision at 11:15 o'clock last night was responsible, and although no one was hurt, it will cost the company $1,000 to repair the big machine, beside the expense of clearing up the wreck.

A large number of women and children from Beloit missed the regular train last night, and Superintendent Moulton ordered a "special" made up to take them home. This train was pulled by engine 625 with Engineer Webber in charge. Before the special returned from the Line City, the "midnight vestibule" from Chicago, had arrived, and was standing in the yards. The vestibule was hauled by one of the big new engines—No. 7—and Engineer Shields was at the throttle. The big engine stood partly on both tracks, but was not moving.

Met With a Crash.

Just then the "special" came puffing into the yards, and an instant later the two engines came together, the special engine scraping along against the big one on the vestibule. The special engine, being in motion had the greatest power, and when the two machines met, the big "hog" quivered and turned on its side with a crash. The mail car went with the engine, and for a few minutes there was great excitement. The train was full of passengers, but none were hurt, and the trainmen all escaped injury. The wreck was so situated that trains could get around it. The limited was backed clear and was pulled north by another engine.

The work of clearing up the wreck drew a thousand people to the yards this morning, and fifty men were put at work straightening matters out.

Look All Day.

Superintendent Moulton, Master Mechanic Heath and Foreman Whalen had charge of the work, but it was a hard job to handle the heavy engine, and the crew worked all day long. Engine No. 7 is one of the new pattern passenger locomotives, and cost $13,000, while the other machine was of the ordinary type.

The blame of the accident, railroad men say, will probably be placed on the special crew. A special train is supposed to watch out for all regular trains as they have the right of way.

The accident was the only one that occurred on either road during the rush of yesterday and last night. Considerable track will have to be rebuilt in consequence of the wreck, as ties were broken and torn up when the engines met.

SAYS JANESVILLE IS ALL RIGHT

Rockford Star Speaks of the Way Woodmen Were Treated.

In speaking of the great picnic this morning's Rockford Star says: "The churches of the city were thrown open to the visitors and each camp assigned to a particular one. The Rockford camps were entertained at the 'All Souls church,' and speak very highly of their treatment. Luncheon was served in each of the churches as well as in the restaurants and eating houses. Instead of a famine, as so often marks such affairs, these were food to spare. Never was a city better prepared to meet every want of the visitors than was Janesville. They certainly proved themselves royal entertainers.

"Crystal Springs and Mayflower park were seen in their prettiest summer garb, and many a tired out chopper found rest beneath their spreading oaks, while the sweet music of a distant band, the tuneful ripple of the charming Rock, and the gentle fanning of a refreshing zephyr swept far from him all care and anxiety, and he drank in the beauties of nature and longed that the Woodman picnic might last forever."

NEW MACHINERY IS BOUGHT.

Thoroughgood & Co. Keeping Abreast of the Times.

Thoroughgood & Co. in addition to placing a larger and more powerful engine in their factory have also bought another band saw weighing over 8,000 pounds. This enterprising firm is evidently not behind the times and shows push that is commendable to themselves and to Janesville. Mr. Thoroughgood says these changes have cost in the neighborhood of $4,000. Their capacity for sawing is such with this additional power, and another heavy band saw machine, that they will be able to accommodate builders and lumber men by doing any work in this line. Every thing is in working order and a look at their premises will convince any one that no expense has been spared in making their machinery and motive power and new engine rooms second to none in the northwest.

Illinois Couples Who Come Here to Attend the Picnic Decide to Stretch The Bliss Out Over a Life Time—List of Those Who Were Made One.

Maybe you think all the folk who came here yesterday had the one idea of attending the picnic in view. If so, you are mistaken.

Some of them had planned to stretch the picnic out over a lifetime, by getting married.

Several couples availed themselves of the fact that Wisconsin laws required no license, etc., and went home, as one.

Some were wed in the morning, some in the afternoon, and some in the evening.

Rev. D. Halsey, of the Court Street church, married four Illinois couples, as follows:

Elmer C. Clark and Myra B. Foster, both of Kingston, Ill.

Mark Conley, machinist, and Margaret Donaldson, Egin, Ill.

Clarence Garner, shoemaker, and Nellie Middleton, De Kalb, Ill.

Fred H. Wheeler, printer, and Hattie F. Hendrickson, Rockford, Ill.

Rev. A. H. Barrington, of Christ church, married one couple:

BIG "LABOR RALLY"
TO LAST ONE WEEKSERIES OF MEETINGS ARE TO BE HELD HERE.

Speaker Will Be Sent By President Tobin, of the Boot and Shoemakers' Union—President Kearns Represents the Local Union at the National Meeting.

A big "labor rally" will be held in Janesville soon.

It will last a week, and the result, undoubtedly, will be the formation of the local branch of the American Federation of Labor, for which arrangements are now being made.

Such is the word received from President Tobin of the Boot and Shoemakers' International union.

The meeting of the International organization this year, will be held in Boston. The Janesville union will be represented by President John Kearns, who was sent to The Hub as their delegate. The session will open on June 15 and will last a week. President Tobin writes the local officers, that he will send a speaker here for the week's rally, and to make arrangements. The meeting will probably be held in Union Labor Hall, but no date has been agreed upon.

The organization of the branch of the American Federation would amalgamate all the local organizations and represent no special branch although the rally will practically be under the auspices of the Shoemakers' union.

REVIVAL OF ROMANCE.

Too long, too long we keep the level plain.
The tilled, tame fields, the bending orchard bough.
The byre, the barn, the thrashing floor, the plow
Too long have seen our theme and our refrain.
Enough, my brothers, of this Doric strain.
Lift up your spirits and record a vow
To gather laurel from the mountain's brow
And bring the era of rich verse again.
Ye painters, paint great Nature's height—
Seas, forests, cliffs upreared in liquid air,
And touch with glamour all things rough and crude.
And ye who fiction weave for our delight,
Give us brave men and women good as fair—
And shame our hollow Saddleback mood.
—Edith M. Thomas in Century.

LOVE IS EVER YOUNG.

She had not the least shame about telling her age. On the contrary, she was rather proud to do so. It was something to be proud of. Not that she was 64, but that at 64 she looked not a day over 48, and a blooming 48 at that.
True, her hair was silver, but what a waving wealth of silver! And it was not sent to soften wrinkles either. She wore as many of these ornaments as it is legitimate to wear at 48, and no more. Oh, she was certainly a wonderful woman for her age, was Mrs. Joseph Allestree!

It did not detract from the comparatively youthful appearance of Mrs. Allestree that her costumes always represented the height of the fashion.
Quaint, indeed, she appeared, particularly on a certain evening, standing in the old square portico, with the sun shining straight under the trees into her face.

The house at her back was low and long. It stood endwise to the lazy little river that flowed at the foot of the abruptly sloping lawn. On the other side, at the end of a long, shaded avenue, was a gate with an old fashioned wooden arch over it, concealed by vines.

It was toward this gate that Mrs. Allestree looked, leaning forward eagerly,
like a girl, one hand shielding her eyes from the level sunbeams. She wore white—think of her daring to wear white! She was watching for Joseph.
He had gone down to Stoneton—only a mile distant—for the post at 5 o'clock.
That was two hours ago. Joseph did love dearly to gossip with the old farmers and shopkeepers, but he really ought to remember dinner time.

But Joseph had not forgotten his dinner. At this very minute the gate opened and his little gig rolled in, followed by three enthusiastic dogs—a St.
Bernard and two red setters.

Mr. Allestree, after embracing his wife, as if he had just returned from a year's journey, went in with her to dinner, and Mr. Allestree was—but I will not describe him; simply he was everything that the husband of Mrs. Allestree should have been. Forty-two years had gone by since their marriage, and in all that time they had never been separated
a single day.

"Dearest," said Mr. Allestree as they sat down, "I owe you an apology for my tardiness, but it couldn't be helped. I got a letter calling me away on an important matter, and I had to stop to attend to some things in the village. I must go immediately—tomorrow."

"Oh, that Perley affair," she said, glancing over the page. "But, Joseph, can't you put it off? Remember the Kennedys are coming in the morning to stay over Sunday."

"I cannot, Henrietta. It's got to be attended to at once."

"But, Joseph, you can't go without me. You know you never did such a thing."

"I am afraid I must do it this time,"
he replied mournfully.

They sat in silence for some minutes.
Twice Mrs. Allestree wiped away a tear with her napkin. At length, bravely assuming a cheerful aspect, she asked,
"How long will you be gone?"

"I can't possibly reach London, accomplish all I want to and get home again in less than ten days."

"Joseph, it will kill us both."

"Ah, no, my dear," he laughed; "it won't quite do that—at least I hope not.
It will be hard, very hard. But think, my love, we were apart for five long years once on a time."

"Ah, Joseph," with a sob in her voice,
"that was before we had ever lived together. We only knew each other by letter, you know."

"And a mighty comfort did we take out of those same letters. Isn't it strange that in two and forty years we should never have had occasion to write to one another? Not since you were Henrietta Shower."

"It is a singular circumstance," she replied. "Yes, we can write. Do you know, Joseph, the thought of it already consoles me a little. It will be such a delightful novelty."

It was a good thing for Mrs. Allestree that she expected visitors. But after the guests had departed her condition was pitiable. Especially as no letter had come.

Mr. Allestree had gone away early on Saturday. Now it was Tuesday. She had managed to be patient over the Sabbath, but on Monday morning, when Jimmy came up from Stoneton empty handed, she had refused to believe that he had not dropped the letter or that the postmaster had not overlooked it.

There were only two deliveries in the 24 hours, and at evening the same performance was repeated.

On Tuesday Mrs. Allestree went herself to Stoneton and delivered a severe lecture to the postmaster upon the general indifference of government officials, thereby greatly annoying the poor man.

Mr. Framwell began to dread the hours of delivery. Twice a day, whatever the weather, Mrs. Allestree presented her handsome, anxious face at the window.

When he handed out the post to her,
and she found not the letter she longed for, an angry face it was that peered in at him, and a stern—albeit well bred—voice that demanded of them to hunt through every box, lest perchance he had made some error in distributing.

The deserted, neglected wife must blame somebody, and she would not blame her husband. She did not at first even dream of blaming Joseph.

By the middle of the week her whole mood changed. She felt hurt, deeply hurt. There seemed to be no reason, no excuse for such neglect. To think that this, their first separation in so many years, should be unbridled by a war.

She could not have the consolation of writing to him, for he had left no address, there being an uncertainty as to the very part of London in which the troublesome Perley was living.

It was the way of men, and it seems, was no better than the way of them. Once out of her sight he forgot all the love and daily devotion of 42 years.

By Saturday morning Mrs. Allestree was ill—ill enough to go to bed. Jimmy had to fetch both posts, and, after delivering in person the first one, which consisted of papers only, he vowed to Mr.
Framwell that he would not approach Mrs. Allestree again while Mr. Allestree was away.

All day Sunday Mrs. Allestree lay silent in a dark chamber. Molly could not get a word from her, nor would she eat.

It was almost restful to be so weak.
True, she was in despair. She had given up all expectation of seeing Joseph again; but, compared with the bewildering tossings of vain conjecture, her present state was one of quietude and peace.

But by Monday morning she was suffering tortments once more. She felt that if Jimmy returned without either Joseph or a letter she would surely die. And indeed she nearly did as it was.

When the wheels sounded again upon the gravel, Mrs. Allestree sat up in bed.
She was whiter than her hair. No voices were heard below. She clutched her heart and gasped. But presently a door opened and a step came up the stairs.
It was the step of Joseph. As he entered the room she fell back among the pillows.

"My dear Henrietta, what's all this?"
He looked round almost accusingly upon the two frightened women as if he had caught them in the act of assassinating their mistress.

"Didn't Jimmy tell you?" she murmured.

"You know Jimmy never tells anything. He did say you weren't well.
But have you been very ill, dear?"

The women had withdrawn, and he seated himself upon the bed.

"Joseph, you might have sent me one little line!"

"Wh-wh-what? I don't quite comprehend.
A line?"

"Yes; it wouldn't have hurt you to write a line."

"Henrietta, I wrote to you every day, and sometimes twice a day."

They stared at each other.

"But I never got a solitary letter,"
she said presently. "I sent to every deliverer—went myself until I became ill.
Mr. Framwell said there was nothing from you. It nearly killed me, Joseph."

"However," he muttered, "they couldn't have all miscarried—I—Henrietta! I have it. Wait; I'll be back in 20 minutes," and the gentleman fairly ran out of the room.

He laughed all the way down stairs, and she heard his ha, ha's between his shouts for Jimmy to bring back the trap.
In a few minutes they rattled out of the grounds, and within the time he mentioned they rattled back again.

Mr. Allestree tore breathless up the stairs, bursting fur fashion into his wife's room. He carried a package of letters, which he spread out in a circle on the bed. There were 14 of them, and every one was addressed to Miss Henrietta Shower.

For a short space nothing was said,
and then the two aged lovers began to laugh, and they laughed until they cried.

"Joseph," she said, "it's very funny, very, but it was almost the death of me.
How did you come to do it?"

"Why, Henrietta, love, when I once got out of your dear, familiar presence the old days came back completely. You were little Retta Shower, and!"

Mr. Joseph Allestree blushed; he did not often quote poetry—

Army Bullets For Game.

Something for sportsmen to consider seriously, if they intend to get one of the new 30 caliber army rifles, is the great penetration of the bullets. One of the bullets would kill a man through a four foot spruce tree or a cow a mile and more away. No ordinary tree can be depended on to stop one of these bullets, and it might easily travel half a mile through dense woods and hit a man far out of sight with deadly effect.

Field and Stream says that the next legislatures of our great game states should pass a law prohibiting the use of a jacketed bullet because of the danger to human beings. Another argument it offers in favor of such a law will have great influence on the men who do not wish to wound without killing the game. "This class of bullets is useless for large game unless soft pointed," it says, "as it rarely kills instantly, but allows the game to die from internal hemorrhage and in terrible agony out of reach."

When such a rifle is used for big game, a bullet that mushrooms should be employed. The mushrooming bullet will kill anything, as it goes clear through an elk, moose or deer, and the force of the impact would knock a running grizzly down.

A Dampier to Small Talk.

Some years ago a New York woman happened to meet at a reception the eminent divine who later became prominent for having given his nickname to the Little Church Around the Corner.

The decorations were pretty, and she remarked conversationally, "How beautiful the flowers are!"

"Flowers!" ejaculated the reverend gentleman. "Incidents in the plan of nature, made to be trodden underfoot!"

The lady relapsed into silence.—New York Journal.

MAKING HATS BY MACHINE.

A Work in Which Women Inventors
Have Been Prominent.

Among the inventions of women on exhibition at Atlanta is one interesting for two reasons, says the New York Times. The first that it dates from a period before women were accounted active in any but the domestic world, and the second that it deals with a department of industry into which women always venture at the risk of being suspected of scant knowledge and less experience—that of mechanics.

This is the straw-sewing machine, which is entered by the committee on inventions by permission of its inventor, Mrs. Mary P. Carpenter Hooper of New York. Although its patent has now expired, and its usefulness in part done away with, this little machine, not so big as a typewriter, worked a revolution in a great industry, and today there is not an inch of straw braid sewed into hats by machinery anywhere that does not employ a part of Mrs. Hooper's invention to accomplish the work.

Mrs. Hooper is the daughter of a former New York lawyer, whose fingers itched with inventive skill, while he kept them bound by the red tape of his profession, so the source of Mrs. Hooper's inventive faculty is not hard to find.
It was while she was still Miss Carpenter that she learned through friends of the curious state of affairs in the straw sewing trade.

Up to that time, 1871, there had been but one practical straw-sewing machine invented, which machine was controlled and used by a combination of three or four firms engaged in the manufacture of straw hats and bonnets.
It was called the Bosworth machine and was immensely valuable, although the operator had to be expert before he could make a hat, as the sewing had to be done backward, from the brim to the crown, and when done the hat was wrong side out—a condition which often resulted in breaking the straw while it was being turned right.

As Miss Carpenter had shown herself possessed of pronounced inventive ability, of which the patent office already bore record, these facts were pointed out to her by some of the leading manufacturers, who were obliged to sew all their straw goods by hand, and she was encouraged to make a new machine which could be generally used.

In 1872 she received a patent for her first model of a machine, but it was not satisfactory to herself and no second machine was built from it. A second attempt a year or two later did not yet fulfill all the requirements she strove for, but in June, 1875, Miss Carpenter completed a machine that could make a hat from its tip or top to the outer edge of the brim without taking it from the machine, and when it was finished it was right side out and did not have to be turned, and moreover,
concealed the stitch—a result heretofore unaccomplished.

The Reindeer's Endurance.

Mr. F. G. Jackson has marvelous tales to tell of the reindeer, their speed and endurance as animals of draft—so marvelous indeed that he must forgive us for suggesting that he has made a mistake in his figures.

"I have myself," he writes in the London Spectator, "driven three reindeer a distance of 120 versts within twelve hours without feeding them, and I heard of a case where a Zhirian drove reindeer from Ishma, on the Pechora river, to Obdorsk, on the Obi, a distance of 300 versts, within twenty-four hours. * * * A reindeer, or Samoyer verst, by the way, is equal to four Russian versts."

In other words, Mr. Jackson says he has driven three deer for twelve hours at the rate of forty Russian versts, or twenty-seven English miles, an hour.
And the Zhirian, with a similar team,
covered 710 miles in twenty-four hours.
The latter, by the way, must have crossed the Ural mountains and one or two rivers in the bargain. Surely there must be some mistake. There exists, it is true, a well-known tradition of a reindeer which once—about 1700, we believe—carried important dispatches for the king of Sweden 800 miles in forty-eight hours, and, dying in the service of the king, is still preserved—in skeleton form—in a northern museum. But that, after all, is only a tradition. Better authenticated records do not give a higher rate of speed than 150 miles to nineteen hours, which is considerably higher than what is attained by any other animal.

Decay of Russian Nobility.

Some startling statistics of the decay of the Russian nobility are given in the list of mortgaged estates furnished by the British consul at St.
Petersburg. At present more than 100,000 estates, or 41 per cent of the entire area owned by nobles, are burdened by mortgages, and the amount of money advanced on them has reached $632,500,000, of which $586,000, 300 remains unpaid. The Nobility Land bank, created by the government to make loans to stranded landlords, has advanced nearly its entire capital of $250,000,000, and received but little in return.

DODGES OF DEBTORS.

One of Them Barricaded Himself at Home but Was Nestly Caught.

There are certain forms well known to the impetuous which tradersmen are in the habit of affixing to their bills and which range from the mildly applicatory to the sternly peremptory, says an exchange. When these come to an end and the debtor shows no inclination to pay recourse is often had to the professional debt-collector.

As might be expected, the dodges resorted to by people who either can't or won't pay are curious, but it is frequently a case of diamond cut diamond and the counter devices of the process-server are fully as ingenious. For instance, on one occasion an obstinate debtor had so securely barricaded himself in the Englishman's proverbial castle and was so wary about promiscuous strangers that he baffled the sheriffs for a long time. One day, however, an expressman brought to the doorstep a large basket with suggestive feathers protruding from under the lid. As the bearer of provisions to the beleaguered garrison he was made heartily welcome, but was no sooner inside the door than he threw off his peaceful character and revealed himself as the sheriff.

Another debtor happened to have his house in a private road, and when the vans for removing the furniture loomed in sight, he successfully appealed to the ground landlord to assert his right of way and so got off, as the vehicles were forbidden to approach within 300 yards of his house.

It must be rather embarrassing to have men in possession of one's home when a big dinner party or dance is pending, but that has ere this happened "smart" but impetuous folk. On occasion, the sheriff's men have acted as waiters and men-servants generally.

JEWS IN NEW YORK.

Their Poor Have Never Been Public Charges in the Metropolis.

It is more than 240 years since the Jews were first admitted, by special license as it were, to the New Netherlands on the express condition that "the poor among them should not become a burden to the company or to the community, but be supported by their own native," and most loyally have they kept the compact that long since ceased to have force to bind, says the Review of Reviews. Their poor are not and never were a burden upon the community. The Jewish inmates of the workhouse and almshouse can be counted on the fingers of one hand any day. They are not paupers.

Of the thousands who received help through the dreadful winter of two years ago, scarce a half dozen remained to be aided when work was again to be had for wages. The Jewish charities are supported with a generosity and managed with a success which Christians have good cause to envy. They are not run by boards of directors who stretch their legs under the table in the board-room while they leave the actual management of affairs to paid superintendents and officials. The Jew as a charity director directs. And he brings to the management of his trust the same qualities of business sagacity, of unerring judgment and practical common sense with which he runs his store on Broadway. Naturally, the result is the same.

Pocket Handkerchief Paper.

A novelty in journalistic enterprise comes from Spain. It is a weekly illustrated "paper" printed on linen. The journal is appropriately entitled "La Tela Cortada" and is sold at 24d. The price is modest enough in view of the peculiar advantages which are offered to subscribers. From an article on hygiene and journalism we learn that the reader has but to send his copy to the laundress after perusal in order to transform it into a superb handkerchief. It will, moreover, be useful for dusting one's hat, wiping away a tear, making one's tender adieux, taking part in popular demonstrations and "preserving diplomatic documents." Although its special applicability to the last-named purpose is not very clear, the "Tela Cortada" must be credited with considerable originality in its aim of extending the sphere of usefulness of the press.—Westminster Gazette.

Incspacitated.

"What is the reason those stockings of mine are not darned?" asked the emancipated woman, as she started downtown.

"I beg your pardon, dear," said the new husband, apologetically, "but I burned my finger so badly ironing your shirts that I cannot hold a darning needle."—N. Y. World.

DON'T RUN AFTER IT.

When Your Hat Blows Off Some Other Fellow Will Run It Down.

The man who is up-to-date knows full well what to do when a sudden gust of wind blows his straw hat from his head and takes it on a mad career down the street, says the New York Herald. He does not make a wild scurry for it, creating intense amusement by his sudden dashes through the crowd or among the vehicles in the streets, only to corral the hat in a mud puddle or some other place just as bad. He has a better trick. He simply stands still, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred some other person who has witnessed the incident will do the chasing and will return the hat to its owner, who, calm and unruffled, will graciously thank him and walk triumphantly away without having turned a hair. A striking example of this fact was witnessed in a Broadway cable-car the other day. Behind an old man, on whose head was a straw hat, the last of the summer vintage, was an open window. As the car passed Forty-second street the sudden gust made itself felt, and, lifting the hat from the old man's head, carried it out of the window and far down the block. Before the old man had jumped to his feet and had succeeded in stopping the car it looked to the other passengers as though his chances of ever regaining the hat were very slim indeed. So they would have been had it not been for the accommodating individual who is every ready to pursue a straw hat which is endeavoring to escape its owner. As the old man reached the rear platform, ready to plunge into the chase, a red-faced, breathless man, holding the mud-begrimed hat in his hand, ran up, and, with a smile that seemed to say, "I'm the fellow that can catch any straw hat that was ever made," handed it to the owner. There was a hasty "Thank you," the conductor, who had scowled at the delay, rang the bell vigorously, and the old man settled himself to clean the hat, well pleased that the incident had not even entailed the expenditure of an extra 5 cents for car fare.

SITKA'S RUSSIAN PASTOR.

Father Donskoy of the Greek Church Recalled After Nine Years' Service.

The Rev. V. P. Donsky, for nine years the pastor of the Greek church at Sitka, Alaska, has been recalled by the synod of St. Petersburg, and came down on the City of Topeka, with his wife and eight young children, the eldest of whom is a boy of 10. His successor is the Rev. Anatole Kamensky, says an exchange. Father Donsky is the typical Russian priest, of massive frame, long, sweeping beard, streaked with gray, and high forehead, sloping down to eyebrows like eaves over a full dark eye. He is gentleness personified as he watches over his little flock at the Diller, and sighs as he thinks of his long journey to New York, and that other long journey to Southampton, and was another weary jaunt in the stinging railroad cars of Europe, for these infants before they come to their place of rest. But then St. Petersburg is his home, he says, with a smile. The beautiful Greek church at Sitka has been visited by thousands of tourists during the time that Father Donskoy has been in charge there, and yet he can speak but few words of English, he has devoted himself so completely to his own people and to the Indians. He had a congregation of 800, about 600 of whom were Indians. He had also his orphanage, his schools and other works to constantly occupy his attention, and in it his life passed gently and happily, for the congregation gave him little trouble on financial grounds. Tourists left many gifts and the congregation was liberal. So behind his suave manner there is no doubt a deep regret that his superior, the synod, should call him from a sphere of such quiet usefulness.

When asked if he would solicit subscriptions on his way, at New York, for instance, for the church at Sitka, he showed surprise at the question. No, no, he said, New York had her own Greek church to support; and, besides, the Sitka church was not in need.

"Men as Lovers."

"If only men would realize that the material side is what we girls care the least for," writes Miss Lillian Bell in February Ladies' Home Journal. "Practically don't think, just because you have built up colonial houses, and have our clothes made for us, and never allow butcher's bills to annoy us, that you have done your whole duty by us. It never occurs to most of us who have these dear American men for lovers and husbands, that we could ever really get cold or hungry. You would have a fit if you thought anybody belonging to you didn't have all the clothes they wanted and the best the market affords. Do you think it is a huge joke when we say that we are mentally cold and hungry a good deal of the time, and that you are a storehouse with all that we need, right within your hearts and brains, only you won't give it to us?"

Education.

No country is saved by a multitude of books or school houses. A man is in danger of being roasted alive who at this time of day will dare to utter such a heresy, but it needs to be uttered. Knowledge is power, indeed; and so is dynamite, but you need to be careful as to the hands to which you trust it. And education needs to be sanctified by religion to make it safe.—P. S. Henson.

BICYCLE SHOES AS EASY AS GLOVES

To be comfortable while riding you must have shoes made for the purpose. The arrangement of vamp sole and lacing must be perfect. Bicycle Shoes for every day wear, however, afford wonderful ease to sensitive feet. They prove very satisfactory, too, for golf and other games where much walking is necessary. No Bicycle Shoe has ever stood the test the way the "Ball Bearing" has.
